ELECTRONIC PLAN REVIEW (EPLAN REVIEW)

In 2016 the Development Services Department will launch ePlan Review, a highly anticipated web-based process where development plans can be submitted, paid for, reviewed and approved electronically!

ePLAN Review City of Austin

What is ePlan Review?

It is an electronic plan and document management system that provides a central "hub" for development project groups (including external applicants and internal City reviewers) to communicate and complete the entire plan review process online, from the initial application stage to final approved plan sets.

Why ePlan Review?

Simply put, ePlan Review will save customers substantial time, money and resources:

- Reduces travel time to One Texas Center
- Allows plan uploads from anywhere, anytime
- Improves turnaround times and accuracy with collaborative reviewing
- Reduces paper, printing, fuel, storage, and disposal costs
- Conserves resources by saving trees, reducing water usage and waste, and lowering emissions

Rollout Schedule

ePlan Review is being implemented in phases, building on the discipline and application types accepted. Full implementation is anticipated for late 2016 with deployment targets currently scheduled for:

- General Permit Telecom – May 2015
- Commercial and Residential Buildings – Summer 2016
- Development Assistance Center – Summer 2016
- Site Plan, Subdivision and Zoning – Fall 2016

Training

Training is being provided to City employees identified as primary users as well as the development community and includes seminars, webinars, an applicant video and handbook, quick reference sheets, and an online helpdesk/chat function.

Please contact us with questions. This page will be updated regularly as ePlan Review rolls out, so check back often for the latest information, community training schedules and helpful resources.
